December 27, 1972

To the Honorable the Mayor:

A review of the membership of the 21 executive boards and commissions and other city and county official bodies not in the executive area indicates that the terms of many members have expired. Nonetheless, they continue to serve without reappointment or replacement. The Mayor appoints 128 members of the total group of 135. The other seven positions are filled by ex officio members or appointments by other groups. Of the potential 128 Mayoral appointments, 60, that is 47 per cent, continue to serve despite the fact that their terms have expired and are therefore holdovers. In addition, four vacancies have not been filled.

The lack of concern for the proper functioning of these commissions and boards can be seen from the following examples:

1. Three of five members of the Art Commission of the Administrative Services Department are holdovers.
2. All of the members of the Board of Examiners of the Building Department are holdovers.
3. Nine of the eleven members of the Zoning Commission of the Building Department are holdovers.
4. Five of the nine members of the Board of Health and Hospitals are holdovers.

5. There are two holdovers and one vacancy on the Associate Commissioners of the Real Property Department, which has a total membership of five.

6. All of the members of the Sinking Funds Commission of the Treasury Department are holdovers for periods ranging from 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 years.

7. Four of the five members of the Freedom Trail Commission are holdovers.

8. Four of the nine members of the Commission on Affairs of the Elderly are holdovers, and in addition, there is one vacancy.

Chapter 486 of the Acts of 1909, as amended, relating to the Mayor's duty to appoint heads of departments and municipal boards reads in part as follows:

"Section 12. A vacancy in any office to which the provisions of...this act apply, shall be filled by the Mayor under the provisions of this Section.

"Section 13. Members of boards shall be appointed for the terms established by law or by ordinance."

The Finance Commission understands that a number of these boards and commissions have no operating budgets, and in many instances members are not paid. As a result, it may be difficult to find qualified people to serve on certain of these boards and commissions. However, if this problem exists, one must question the need for boards and commissions which fail to elicit sufficient public interest or official responsibility to fill their rosters with current members. If some of these groups no longer serve the need they once did when civic concern brought about their creation, perhaps it is time to consider their consolidation and even elimination.

Although the Finance Commission realizes the honorary nature of some of these appointments, nonetheless, many of these commissions are extremely important to the City.

The Finance Commission urges that the membership of these commissions and boards be filled promptly.

Holdovers having an indefinite term of office cannot be expected to have a commitment equal to that of persons with definite terms. In addition to failing to fulfill your legal responsibilities, you leave yourself open to the criticism that this situation enables you to exert influence and control over legally independent boards and commissions.

It should be noted that in addition to the 21 boards and commissions referred to above, there is one other commission where the responsibility for appointment rests primarily with the Mayor. The Commission on Mental Retardation has nine members, seven of whom are appointed by the Mayor. The other two members are the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation and the Commissioner of Health and Hospitals who serve as ex officio members.

The tables on the following pages set forth various data relating to the 21 executive boards and commissions referred to in the first paragraph above.

Respectfully submitted,

Ralph I. Fine, Chairman

Joseph P. McNamara,

Russell S. Codman, Jr.,

Frederick R. H. Witherby,
